

Keith Curtis

Clean fun in Vegas? Keith Curtis spices up the Las Vegas landscape with pure, wholesome comedy, proving that humor doesn't have to be dirty to be outrageously funny. A statistician by day, Keith defies the joke that statisticians don't have enough personality to become accountants. He surprises audiences with quick, bright twists of humor as he demonstrates the ingenious talent of a true clean comedian.

Keith thrives on applying his snappy wit to everyday experiences, unveiling amusement almost everywhere in his life as a Las Vegas single — from the city itself to cars, restaurants, television and work. Sports jokes highlight Keith's repertoire. A former referee, he aspired to become a pro football ref until he realized the hecklers were worse than in comedy.

Keith is often the brunt of his own satire. Though he's a Virginia native, much of his material is straight from the southwest's Sonoran desert: "It's a dry humor."

A dedicated Christian, Keith is obviously not afraid to be different — and he holds his own even in a rough crowd. Before moving to sin city, he headlined at numerous churches and clubs. He also was co-producer and co-star of Comedy Thrift Shop, a weekly show televised on Channel 98 in Phoenix, Arizona, for nearly three years.

What do Keith's audiences think?

"He's the cleanest funny comedian I know and the funniest clean comedian I know." — Larry Kenny

"Clean yet edgy, the clever Christian conservative comedian Keith Curtis is a contender." — Julia Gorin

"Keith is a talented young writer and comic thinker. He's well ahead of the curve." — Bob Kubota

Among the many locations where Keith has performed are New York City; Las Vegas; San Francisco; Phoenix and Scottsdale, Arizona; Albuquerque, New Mexico; and Melbourne, Australia. He shares a birthday with his favorite comedian, Rita Rudner.

Let Keith's intelligent brand of comedy bring a refreshing lift to your corporate event, church gathering or nightclub lineup. He'd be happy to tailor material to a special occasion if needed.
